SIX MONTHS IN WORKHOUSE.

George Coates Pays Penalty for Selling Liquor to Minors.

Charged with furnishing beer to minors, George Coates, colored, was arraigned before Judge Kimball in the Police Court this morning, and in default of a fine of $50 was sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse.

Harry Owens, aged fifteen years, testified that yesterday he met Coates coming out of a barroom and asked him what he had in the bucket he was carrying. Coates replied that it was beer, and if Owens wanted any he would let the latter have some for 5 cents. Owens got the beer from Coates and promised to pay Coates for it after he and his companion had drunk it.

Policeman Shepherd of the seventh precinct, who had been watching the transaction, thought it was about time to interfere, but the boys saw him first, and dropped the beer and ran. The officer then turned his attention to Coates and after chasing him four blocks caught him and locked him up.

Spaniards Charge Coercion.

MADRID, May 3.—The liberals have refused to participate in the senatorial elections, which take place May 5, on the ground that the actions of the Maure government render a fair expression of the people's will impossible. The impartial says that the dismissal of 150 mayors and the suppression of many municipal councils constitute a scandalous use of coercion and prove the reactionary tendencies of the Maure ministry. Continuing, the paper reports that parliament will be unable to legislate under such conditions.

Call Upon Mrs. McClellan.

A pleasant feature today was the visit paid Mrs. McClellan at her apartments in the Graton by Lieut. Round and about a dozen members of the 1st Connecticut Heavy Artillery, known in war times as "Mrs. McClellan's Own." She was photographed in the center of a group of the veteran fighters of her favorite regiment. In the party were Benjamin Andrews, commander of the Nebraska State University, who entered the 1st Connecticut as a private and came out at the close of the war as a Lieutenant.

After having a pleasant chat with the widow of their noted first commander the party was taken to Fort Myer to witness the up-to-date military evolutions which have succeeded the obsolete drills and maneuvers of the old army.

High honor has been conferred upon Maj. R. W. Tyler of the firm of Tyler & Rutherford by his election as vice president of the Society of the Army of the Potomac. It was stated that quite a number of the veteran soldiers will visit the Jamestown exposition before returning to their homes. The regular troops and the National Guard of New Jersey have returned to their respective stations, and tomorrow the streets of Washington will wear their normal appearance.

May Freeze Out Penrose.

Frick's Friends Demand Senatorial Toga for Western Part of State.

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—United States Senator P. C. Knox will claim Valley Forge as his permanent abiding place, and western Pennsylvania will claim the right to elect his successor.

This statement, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, made by a prominent republican, is given as an explanation why H. C. Frick's name has been mentioned, together with other western Pennsylvanians, as probable successors to Boies Penrose.

ENDS WITH BANQUET

Reunion of Ex-Union Soldiers to Close Tonight.

VIEWING THE SIGHTS TODAY

First Event Was Cavalry and Artillery Drill at Fort Myer.

VISIT TO ARLINGTON CEMETERY

Inspection of Old Forts in Vicinity of Washington—Reception at the White House.

With soldier stories, songs and patriotic oratory the thirty-seventh annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac will come to a conclusion this evening at a joint banquet to be held at Raucher's. The function will begin at 8 o'clock, and the societies of the armies of the Cumberland, Ohio and Tennessee will participate. The program for today opened with the cavalry and artillery drill at Fort Myer at 10 o'clock this forenoon. A squadron of cavalry and two field batteries participated in the evolutions and showed the old soldiers of the sixties some military stunts that were real revelations to them. Instead of the old-fashioned long canons of the civil war, modern breech-loading guns were manipulated by the cannoneers of the 3d and 4th United States batteries, while the evolution of the modern cavalry caused the venerable vets to stare and wonder.

"Had we possessed such guns, big and little, in the sixties," said a veteran volunteer from Connecticut, "we could have ended the civil war in a jiffy. After viewing the work of cavalry and battery as it is conducted in the twentieth century's advanced art of war, and applauding the soldiers of 1917 in their khaki uniforms, the visiting veterans and their escorts returned to Washington, after taking a peep at historic Arlington, where so many of their former comrades were cast their last bivouac and are sleeping their last sleep.

They were very much interested in the surrounding territory of Virginia, on which the greatest battles of the civil war were fought.

Recall the Civil War.

Some of them recalled the time when the surrounding Virginia heights were massed with men in blue and crowned with forts and big guns for the protection of the capital city from confederate invasion. A number of the old soldiers also visited the time-worn forts they had helped to man in the days of fire and smoke and carnage from 1861 to 1865.

This afternoon the survivors of the several armies formed in line at the White House and passed through the east room, where they grasped the hand of President Roosevelt, himself a veteran of the latest war this country has been engaged in—that with Spain for humanity's sake.

At the conclusion of this reception the visitors found awaiting them a long line of automobiles, great and small, about fifty in number. The weather man kept the rain clouds off the parade, and the other masses of vapor on the move in the skies, so that the conclusion of the reunion might be a pleasant as well as a memorable one.

The autos were long lines and filled with badge and ribbon-bedecked veterans—the grim fellows who fought with McClellan on the peninsula of Virginia and at Antietam, Md.—and the uniformed clerks started on their sight-seeing tour. More than 250 soldiers and their ladies and friends filled the vehicles and every part of Washington will be visited, including the former Old Capitol prison, which became so famous during war times.

An Orderly Retreat.

"Yes, we are going to leave beautiful Washington," said a tanned soldier of the civil war, "and many of us will never see the pretty capital again. But we will try and retreat in as orderly and masterly a manner as our first great commander, Gen. McClellan, retired from the Virginia peninsula early in the civil war. The work of the several corps and committees was closed up this afternoon and gravest quiet reigned at the headquarters of the executive committee, 220 New York avenue, the erstwhile scene of bustle and activity, and the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac in the Ebbitt House. It was stated that quite a number of the veteran soldiers will visit the Jamestown exposition before returning to their homes. The regular troops and the National Guard of New Jersey have returned to their respective stations, and tomorrow the streets of Washington will wear their normal appearance.

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—United States Senator P. C. Knox will claim Valley Forge as his permanent abiding place, and western Pennsylvania will claim the right to elect his successor.

This statement, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, made by a prominent republican, is given as an explanation why H. C. Frick's name has been mentioned, together with other western Pennsylvanians, as probable successors to Boies Penrose.

There are half a dozen big Pittsburgh politicians ambitious to wear the senatorial garb, and their knowledge that Mr. Knox intends to admit that he has really abandoned Pittsburgh is cause for the preliminary skirmish among leaders in the republican party to believe they have a ghost of a show for the place.

"In other words," admitted the Dispatch informant, "Senator Penrose will wake up some day to discover he is the victim of a 'freedom' game."

"He will be a candidate, but it is not logical for Pennsylvania to elect two representatives from the same section of the state."

"Pittsburgh republicans know that Senator Knox has abandoned this city. It is true
